in consequence, but it was remedied in a short while.

Eleven o'clock a, m., the bricklayers are up to square of ceiling for third floor, with corners raised to the height required to receive the rafters for roofing. Tinners waiting. The process of white-coating is now about completed in the first story; 10:18 a. m., first rafter for the roof laid. At 11:11 the last brick was placed upon the chimneys, and the bricklayers are done. Roof sheathed and tinners begin to lay roofing. 12:50, scaffolding all removed from building. 2:30 p. m., sash in windows of first story and painters finished up; washboards down and rubbish cleared away. At this writing the tinners are leaving the building; roofing and spouting completed. Plasterers still at work in the second story. The buildhas been insured, and in the course of a few hours will be ready for a tenant.

THE LATEST SNAKE STORY.

THE LATEST SNAKE STORY.

A most exciting battle took place a few miles from this town a few days since between a well to-do farmer and a snake, described by the gentleman as a moccasin perhaps of the highland species. The gentleman, who is well known to me, and for whose accuracy and truthfulness I can safely vouch, was returning home from town with his wife and child in a buggy drawn by two spirited horses, which his horses stopped in evident affright at the sight of a monster stake lying across the track at some distance in front of them. Giving the reins to his wife the gentleman left the buggy and selecting a piece of fence rait advanced and struck the snake one blow, when the rait unfortunately broke and when the rail unfortunately broke and left him defenseless. The snake imme-diately dashed at him and ran him flercebarry, this seek in the was about to be overtaken the gentleman made for his barry, which he barely reached in time, the snake springing up with great force against the wheel as he jumped in alongde his wife.

In a moment the gentleman had his baggy whip in hand, and with the but of it had a desperate fight with the monster, which continued its determined efforts to effect an entrance to the buggy. The horses becoming uneasy and the wife dreadfully alarmed, the lines in her hands were somewhat relaxed, and the team made a spurt which at once carried the party a hundred yards from the scene of affect. Looking back and finding that his enemy held the field, and showed no position to run, the gentleman again left his bungy, and securing a stout and reliable club, returned and renewed the light. As he advanced, and when within a few feet, the snake sprung at him with distended jaws, when a well directed blow laid him on the ground, where he was soon dispatched. The snake was five inches in diameter and nearly nine feet long, and although the dog days are considered as infusing more than ordihary venom and malignity into the ser-pent tribe, yet this furnishes one of the very few and certainly the most remark-able of instances in this section of a snake attacking and engaging in a per-sistent and continuous fight with a man and showing no signs of a retreat, but acting on the offensive throughout, and fighting to the death.—[Sumter Correspondence N. Y. World, August 2d.

PARADOXES,--The word oblige is subject to paradoxical construction. When on oblige a man to do a thing which he ness not want to do, you may disoblige in at the same time. It has been rehim at the same time. marked that there is a great difference between a church where the gospel is dis-pensed, and one where it is dispensed with. We have often heard of the story of how the Captain of a canal boat cried "Look out!" to his passengers, and when they were going under a bridge, and how a Frenchman looked out accordingly and received a bump on his head; but it has never been decided that head; but it has never been decided that the Frenchman took any incorrect or unsual signification from the words. It has never been decided whether a house burns up or down. The questian whether a man falls from a boat and is rescued from drowning is pulled out or pulled in, depends whether you are speaking primarily of the water or the boat. Some one has noticed that people say that they shell peas when they unshell them; that they lunsk corn when they unskin it; that they skin a buffalo when they unskin it; that they scale fish when they usele them, and they want weeding when they are weedy enough already.

THE REAL TICHBORNE.—The Captain of a trading vessel writes to the Valparatio Mail that some mouths since, while at Byron's Island, in the South Pacific, he saw the real Sir Roger Tichborne, who is now a chief among the natives. He is described as being so tattoced, from forehead to heel, as hardly to be distinguished as a white man. He showed the Captain a Liverpool paper containing a report of the Tichborne trial, and said: "I am the rightful heir to that title and property, and all that is here stated in this paper is false. How can I appear in England to claim my just rights? There is no escape from here." Here he became greatly affected, but recovering himself, he continued: "But so that I may be traced by those who may be willing to succor me, and to resome me from my long captivity, and place me in the position to which I rightfully belong in the world, I would refer them to the THE REAL TICHBORNE.-The Captain

The cellar foundation was already laid, and at precisely 6 o'clock Friday morning the men went to work. The Examiner thus describes the labor:

Mr. T. J. Reading, photographer, was present with his apparatus, and took views every fifteen minutes of the building and the workmen while in motion, which, of course, produced some ridiculous pictures—men, white and colored, in almost every position, are to be seen represented. At 8 o'clock an, the structure was advanced to the height of one story, with two floors—ground and partiy plastered, doors kung, stair-ways up, and a view taken with the Dotor in the midst of his workmen. The scene is a busy and comic one—the bricklayers execting scaffolding for the second story, Ten o'clock a m. view taken of western foot of Frince street; second story brick work two-thirds up, with carpenties are always expected in almost every position, are to be seen short of brick, and then some delay in consequence, but it was remedied in a short while.
